

The building which houses the Denver Firefighters Museum was built in 1909 and served as a working fire station until 1975. In 1976 it was placed on the National Register of Historic Places and opened to the public. Today, the museum offers visitors the opportunity to explore the history of the Denver Fire Department and learn about fire safety and prevention through a dynamic mix of exhibits, hands-on activity stations and educational programs.

The Denver Firefighters Museum is a 501 C 3 private nonprofit organization. Your contribution may be tax deductible. Please consult your tax advisor.
